

ALAN DUNTON

PhD

Alan completed his degree in Sport & Exercise before specialising on the concept of perceptual-motor training in his PhD at the Cork Institute of Technology. He is currently a lecturer in coaching science and sports pedagogy at Munster Technological University, where he is a member of the Hex-Spo research group with a focus in the domain of skill acquisition.

Alan also engages in consultancy work for skill acquisition and athletic performance and movement for developmental and professional athletes across a variety of sports.